

Knutsford retail scene attracts several new tenants despite economic uncertainty.

Written by Len Thomson

Monday, 12 July 2010 01:04 - Last Updated Wednesday, 18 August 2010 08:54

New companies moving in include Rohan outdoor clothing in Princess St, yet to be confirmed

- A

Jewellery shop in Minshull St, taking over

Modelle's premises, A new

fashion clothing shop

where the Dressing Room was trading, Chalon Interior design/kitchens, to open in what was formerly known as Cos Recruitment. an Art gallery in the former Starbucks, another kitchen design shop

, and the already opened

A

unity Mabels Seat.

Perhaps this is indicative of what life has in store for us in Knutsford thanks to the 'austerity package' created by our own Tatton MP and Chancellor, George Osborne, where we will be spending more time and money in our kitchens, buying suitable attire for 'staycation holidays' and saving money by not having to move into a larger house. .

Exiting from the retail scene in June and July sadly includes the loss of Modelle, Nasty and the Dressing Room.

Chris Orwell of

Interiors,

trading for the past 20 years from his premises in King Street, has decided to close and have already left. Most owners stated that failure to address the parking issues contributed to their decision not to renew their leases.

Starbucks